

Reflection

I hope that I can invent the new technologies to make humanity life easier. I hope by understanding on how to design and come out with the solution to some problem, it can help me to solve others people problem. Other than that I think that I learn a lot about cloud computing and its importance to our daily life such as in the education, working and many more. During this design thinking process also it make me think outside of the box to get the solution for the problem. I think what I can improve is to eager to explore new things, learn communication skill and create more invention and idea to be shared with other
